REGISTRATION SUGGESTION

Married women who register for voting should give their own and not their husband's Christian names. The state board of election commissioners believes. For example, Mary Smith should register as Mary Smith and not as Mrs. John Smith. The commissioners say, however, it will not be necessary for women who have registered under the husband's Christian names to register again, but that when they appear to vote they should make known that, for instance, Mary Smith, registered as Mrs. John Smith, is appearing for voting.

The Seminary at St. Louis is the largest protestant Theological Seminary in the United States and the position offered carried with it the highest honors that the Synod can bestow. Last night at a special meeting the St. Paul's Lutheran congregation after thorough consideration, unanimously requested Rev. Lichtstinn not to accept the call, but stay with the congregation, where he has been so successful and won, in the short time he has been here, the esteem and love of all, old and young. Rev. Lichtstinn, though being well fitted for the new position and the work being suited to his inclination decided to abide by the wish of the congregation and remain as its pastor, which will surely please the host of friends he has here.
